polls in five minutes if they did not subside and give the voters a chance to get to the window. "Jim" Berry had charge of the Parker forces in this ward. Over in the Twelfth, where the greatest trouble had been anticipated, the scene was fairly tranquil up until 6 o'clock. John Scanlon marshaled the Hearst forces there and claimed to be carrying things his own way, but the organization workers showed they were casting three votes to one for the Hearst slate. The Hearst people had made some claims of what they would do in the Sixth, but they falled to make good, owing, they de clared, to the intervention of Providence. They said that a man named Milner, who had their supply of tickets for that ward, was run over by a street car on his way to the polls and all the tickets were lost. In and such Hearst votes as were cast were ones that were written with pencil or pen on slips of paper. The Parker people claimed when the polls were closed that over twenty-five or thirty Hearst votes had been cast out of a total of over 500.

ISSUE CLEARLY DRAWN. Where contests were made the issue was clearly drawn between Parker and Hearst. The tickets that had been prepared by the organization forces of which Thomas Taggart is the commander-in-chief were handed out as Parker slates, while the other tickets were called the Hearst slates. In the Tenth ward the Hearst people headed their ticket with the line, "Anti-snap Delegates." In this ward also the Hearst people attempted a coup by placing the names of two of the candidates for delegates on the Parker slate on their slate-John Barmfuhrer and John Curran. Both Barmfuhrer and Curran declared they had not authorized the placing of their names on the Hearst slate and that they were Parker men. Former City Clerk John Geckler headed the Hearst slate in this ward and handled a large force of lieutenants. It was noticeable in three or four wards that the Hearst forces had more active workers than they mustered voters, as several of their workers were imported and could not vote. Scores of men were busy all over the city distributing copies of Hearst's Chicago American to all who came near the voting places. The papers were carted about over the city in carriages and express wagons and were scattered broadcast by the thousand. The feature in the paper to which the distributors called attention was a story on the front page, un-der a flaring headline, in which an attempt was made to show that Hearst had won a remarkable victory in Kansas and that the Kansas delegation to the national convention would be solid for him.

HEARST MONEY PLENTIFUL.

That the Hearst workers had an abundance of money was shown by the number of carriages and wagons with which they were supplied to haul voters to the polls, by the unprecedented business done by the saloons in the vicinity of the polls, and by the "not how much are we offering, but how much do you want" manner they went after votes. The organization crowd claimed they had good evidence that the Hearst people put out not less than $5,500 in the various wards Wednesday night and Thursday. They added, with expressions of snug satisfaction, that Hearst got little returns from a large part of this sum, as their own men had been instructed to take the Hearst money and spend it "among the boys" or keep it, as they saw

The Parker people were by no means poverty-stricken and destitute of the sinews of war. They had plenty of means to provide transportation facilities for the voters, and they also contributed generougly to the receipts of the saloons.

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET CLOSES THE CONVENTION

Three Hundred Phi Psis Sing Songs and Give College Yells at Biennial Dinner.

OVATIONS FOR GUESTS

George Bramwell Baker New President of Fraternity-Washington Next Meeting Place.

The climax of the Twenty-third Grand Arch Council of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, held at the Claypool Hotel, and the most successful in the fraternity's history, came last night at the banquet, to which nearly 300 Phi Psis, from young college men to gray-haired alumni, sat down in the assembly hall of the Claypool.

The bahquet followed a day of important business, chief of which was the election of the fraternity's officers for the ensuing two years. George Bramwell Baker, a well-known Indiana man, formerly of Warsaw, Ind., and a graduate of De Pauw University, but now of Boston, was elected president; the Rev. W. E. Alexander, of Washington, D. C., vice president; Orra E. Monnette, of Toledo, secretary, for the fourth term, and L. M. McCoy, of Chicago,

Last night's banquet was served at three long tables, extending the length of the assembly hall, and a fourth shorter table at their head. The sumptuous menu included twelve courses and took from 9 o'clock to nearly 12 o'clock in the serving. So much greater than the expectations was the attendance that a number of local and Indiana Phi Psis relinquished their seats at the banquet board for the accommodation of visiting brothers, and enjoyed an impromptu "overflow banquet" in the Claypool cafe, returning to the assembly hall any event they did not have any tickets, in time for the programme of toasts that followed the menu.

MEMORY WILL LIVE LONG. the banners and pennants of all the colleges and universities represented at the board, and with the Phi Psi colors of pink and lavender, and with the memory of the successful dance of the evening before fresh in the minds of the Greeks assembled in the hall for a second but different occasion, an evening was enjoyed that will linger long in the minds of all who par-

From the moment of entry until the last guest reluctantly left the hall in the early hours of the morning, the beautiful room resounded with the yells and songs of the institutions represented-by from two to several dozen Phi Psis-with Phi Psi songs and yells, and with cheers for the popular and prominent members of the fraternity present. It was an occasion to make the oldest heart young again, and many an elderly alumni, yielding to the enthusiasm of the occasion, sang and cheered until his voice was husky and his noise-making ability taxed to the full. Songs and yells were to be heard at all times, between courses and in the midst of their serving, and to this part of the programme almost more attention seemed to be paid by some than to

In the balcony of the assembly hall number of women and young girls were seated throughout the entire evening, enjoying from that distance an occasion that for its novelty and its spectacular features could scarcely be surpassed. The long lines of table seen from above made a beautiful picture, and the enthusiasm and good cheer that were present in overflowing exuberance made the interest of the event unflagging. At times the babel of songs and cheers was such as only college men can make, representatives of half a themselves heard above the friendly rivalry of noise that shook the walls of the hall. An orchestra, seated behind a screen of palms on the rostrum, played fraternity and popular airs, and at times the banqueters joined in with song and cheer and the clinking of glasses. The playing of "Dixie" brought half the men in the room to their feet, with white napkins waving in the air, the Southerners leading in the demonstration, but followed closely by their Northern brothers.

EXTRA ON HAND. At 12 o'clock, after coffee and cigars, an unwonted disturbance was created in the hall by the appearance of newsboys crying "Extra! the Midnight Shield!" Thereupon each guest was given a copy of a remarkable newspaper, the like of which had never before been seen, and copies of which, it is safe to say, will be treasured by many for years. It was a clever burlesque on "yellow sheets" of the day, and purported to contain bits of startling information about Phi Psis in general, and the G. A. C. in particular. The front page of the paper contained in glaring headlines the news of the "Midnight Shield's" victory over the forces or corporate greed in the election of Mr. Baker to the presidency of the fraternity. The plan was conceived and carried out by local newspaper men who are members of the fraternity and by George B. Lockwood, secretary to Governor Durbin, who is the editor of "The Shield," the monthly magazine of Phi Kappa Psi. John L. Griffiths, of this city, was the symposiarch of the programme of toasts that lasted until the small hours of the morning. His prefatory remarks and those introducing each speaker were in his wellknown forceful and eloquent style, and the programme of toasts was one seldom surpassed in this city.

OVATION FOR RILEY. Perhaps the greatest ovation of the evening was that given to James Whitcomb Riley, claimed by Phi Psis as their poet as well as "The Hoosier Poet," who recited his own poem, "Nothin' More Patheticker Than Just a Bein' Rich." At the announcement of his name the men in the hall rose to their feet and stood upon chairs, cheering and waving napkins, and it was some moments before the din had subsided so that Mr. Riley could begin. Other speakers of the evening were Wal- | present. ter Holden, of Michigan Alpha, who talked on "The Sense of Nonsense;" Edward Kibler, of Ohio Gamma, whose subject was and badge; James R. Williams, of Indiana Beta, member of the national legislature from the Twenty-fourth Illinois congressional district, whose theme was "Politics," and Dr. Edwin A. Schell, the widely known Methodist clergyman of Indiana, who concluded the programme with an eloquent toast to the general fraternity, "Phi Kappa

PRESENTED WITH PINS. During the course of the evening E. Lawrence Fell, of Philadelphia, the retiring president of the fraternity, and C. F. M. Niles, of Toledo, the rtiring treasurer, who had just completed four years' service as of Boutet de Mouvel. Miss Gill will also that official of the fraternity, were presented with beautifully jewelled Phi Psi pins, set with diamons, as emblems of the fraternity's affection and gratitude for services rendered it. Both Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Fell responded feelingly, thanking the fraternity for its gratitude and love and the manner of its expression. Telegrams were read at the banquet sending greeting from James E. Watson, the Phi Psi Indiana congressman, and from the San Francisco, Denver and other Alumni Associations of Phi Psi. To-day will see all of the delegates to the Grand Arch Council on their homeward journeys, reaching to all parts of the country, from California to New England. Ca all hands the opinion has been expressed that the G. A. C. just passed was the most successful and the most encouraging ever held by the fraternity, and the Indianapo-lis and Indiana Phi Psits, who have been largely responsible for that happy result, are correspondingly gratified. The fraternity will next meet in biennial general session in Washington, D. C., in April, 1906. IMPORTANT BUSINESS SESSION. A well-known Hoosier, George Bramwell Baker, formerly of Warsaw, Ind., was day afternoon. Although Mr. Baker re- acceptance of rent because of the delay cently moved to Boston, the Indiana alumni in boring wells.

Monnette, Bucyrus, O., secretary; Lincoln M. Corey, Chicago, treasurer. Several important matters were considered and action was taken upon them. In the first place it was decided to hold the next biennial convention at Washington, D. C. After a spirited debate it was decided, regarding the extension policy, that it was in the interests of the society to institute a chapter at the University of Illinois, but that nothing should be done concerning founding one at the University of Texas till a committee had looked the ground over and made a report thereon. Elaborate resolutions were passed in thanks to the Indiana Alumni Association for the glorious time they gave their brothers, and a special vote of thanks was offered to the presiding officer, Frank L.

Quite a controversy took place when the question of changing the colors was brought up. It was argued that it was a presumed difficulty to get a heraldic treatment of two such delicate colors as lavender and pink. The motion to change the colors was de- hear, while another laughed. With the assembly room decorated with feated, and a committee was appointed to "During the scripture reading Mrs. Dowie

T. P. A.'S ANNUAL BALL PROVES A BIG SUCCESS

German House Ballroom Beautifully Decorated for the Occasion.

Twigs of apple and peach blossoms entwined about the posts, and masses of blue and white bunting covering the walls, lent a most beautiful and novel charm to the ballroom of the German House on the occasion of the annual ball of the Travelers' night. From early evening until late at night there was dancing, and when the music for the last waltz began the merrymakers seemed so alive with enjoyment dozen colleges attempting at times to make and good humor that they could have danced on till daybreak.

Dowie Declares Disturbers Are Criminals and then Escapes Through Back Door. CHICAGO, April 8 .- John Alexander

Dowie's turbulent experiences in Australia are described in the Melbourne Argus, recent copies of which have reached Chicago. The report of his meeting in the exposition building Sunday afternoon, Feb. 28, shows the scene became one of mob disorder. Rioting started when he denounced the disturbers in the gathering as "criminals," and scolded the rest of the audience of more than 7,000 for allowing disorder. Mrs. Dowie, when she attempted to read the Scripture lesson, was given an unfavorable reception. Dowie and his party escaped from the crowd under the protection of police. Zion City overseer was forced to abandon further meetings in the exposition building.

"When Dowie and his party appeared on the platform the effect was theatrical. The first two were in semi-military costume. Then came Mrs. Dowie, in a clerical dress of white, with a black surplice garment, and the Rev. Mr. Dowie. Dr. Gladston Dowie's vestments were in black silk and velvet with deep purple velvet collar.
"The announcement that Mrs. Dowie would read the first lesson produced a cat call. "'The officers will see to that in the corner,' cried Mr. Dowie. "Mrs. Dowie then began to read the lesson in a voice that could not be heard at the back. There was a slight interruption under the dome, and promptly Mr. Dowie stopped the lesson. I have never seen Mrs. Dowie subjected to such insolent treatment,' he said; and a man cried 'Hear,

"To the Foreign Office went seven correspondents, but after many vain efforts to make the Japanese servants understand their mission they went to the Navy Department. There was another long wait. The correspondent with the Russian cap, called the spy, suggested that the low comedian from Chicago oblige with a dance, but by the time the low comedian had uncoiled his seven feet preparatory to responding, the image who took the cards had returned with a message to call at the residence of the foreign minister. There, after another long wait, they were sent to the Foreign Office again.

For twenty minutes we were left to conspire by ourselves. Then a man came suddenly and said: 'I think we had better go to a room where there are electric lights. 'We arose and followed him downstairs, through the halls, and into the dark labyrinthian passage of our first encounter. In a far corner the guide stopped and called loudly to unseen persons. Presently there was a scuffling through the passage and a man appeared with a candle. He opened a door and the guide went into the dark room. The man with the candle fumbled along the wall, finally found the switch, and turned on the electric light. It was a fileroom for old newspapers. There were reading desks scattered about. We sat down and prepared to take notes.

"The guide sat in the center and spread out a report from which he began to read the news which the Navy Department had telephoned to us to go to the foreign office to get. It was half past 12 o'clock. The man read rapidly for fifteen minutes. It was the report of the admiral describing the attempt to block the entrance to Port Arthur by sinking merchantmen. It was day. Sunday fair and warmer, fine news, and had been cabled twelve hours before. "It was 1 a. m. when we got back to the hotel, but we had called on the Foreign Office and received the news from the

Spring Medicine

There is no other season when good medicine is so much needed as in the Spring. The blood is impure, weak and impoverished-a condition indicated by pimples and other eruptions on the face and body, by deficient vitality, loss of appetite, lack of strength, and want of animation.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Make the blood pure, vigorous and rich, create appetite, give vitality, strength and animation, and cure all eruptions. Have the whole family begin to take them today. "Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used in our family for some time, and always with good results. Last spring I was all run down and got a bottle of it, and as usual received great benefit," MISS BEULAH BOYCE, Stowe, Vt.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.
